

We all want the best for our children. We want to do all we can to support their social, mental and physical development. Pretend City Children's Museum's child development initiative, Good To Go From Head To Toe, has been designed to help parents, educators and caretakers better understand their child's development every step of the way. By educating the community about the importance of regular developmental checkups for children birth through 5-years-old, providing on-site health screenings, educational programming, take-home resources and more, we are supporting parents, educators and caretakers to achieve the overall goal that children will grow up healthy and ready for school.

This directory aims to connect parents and caretakers with the many community resources Orange County has to offer in association to child development. From where to take your child for a developmental checkup, educational classes, resources and support, to finding a great pediatrician or child care center – you'll find it here. Think we missed something? Call 949.428.3900 Ext. 212

This guide is produced annually and is meant to serve as a resource for parents, educators, caretakers and community partners. Every effort has been made to provide accurate information pertaining to the services offered by our community partners. If your organization would like to be featured in next year's guide or your organization's information needs to be corrected, please submit your requests in writing or via email to:
